What are the important KEYWORDS (concepts and terms) in project management?

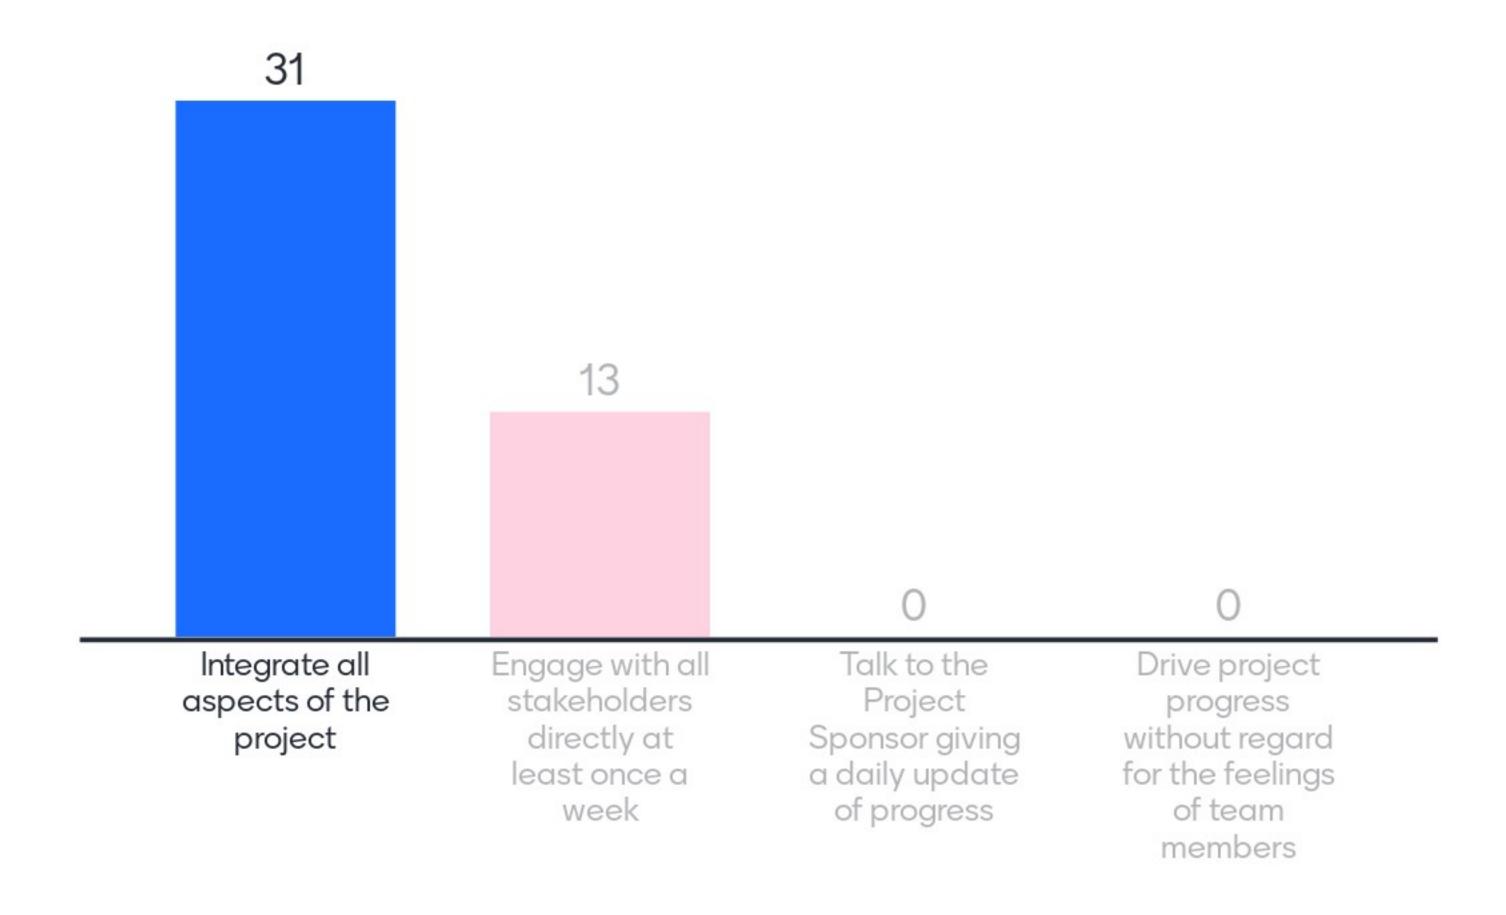

Which of the following are all characteristics of a project?

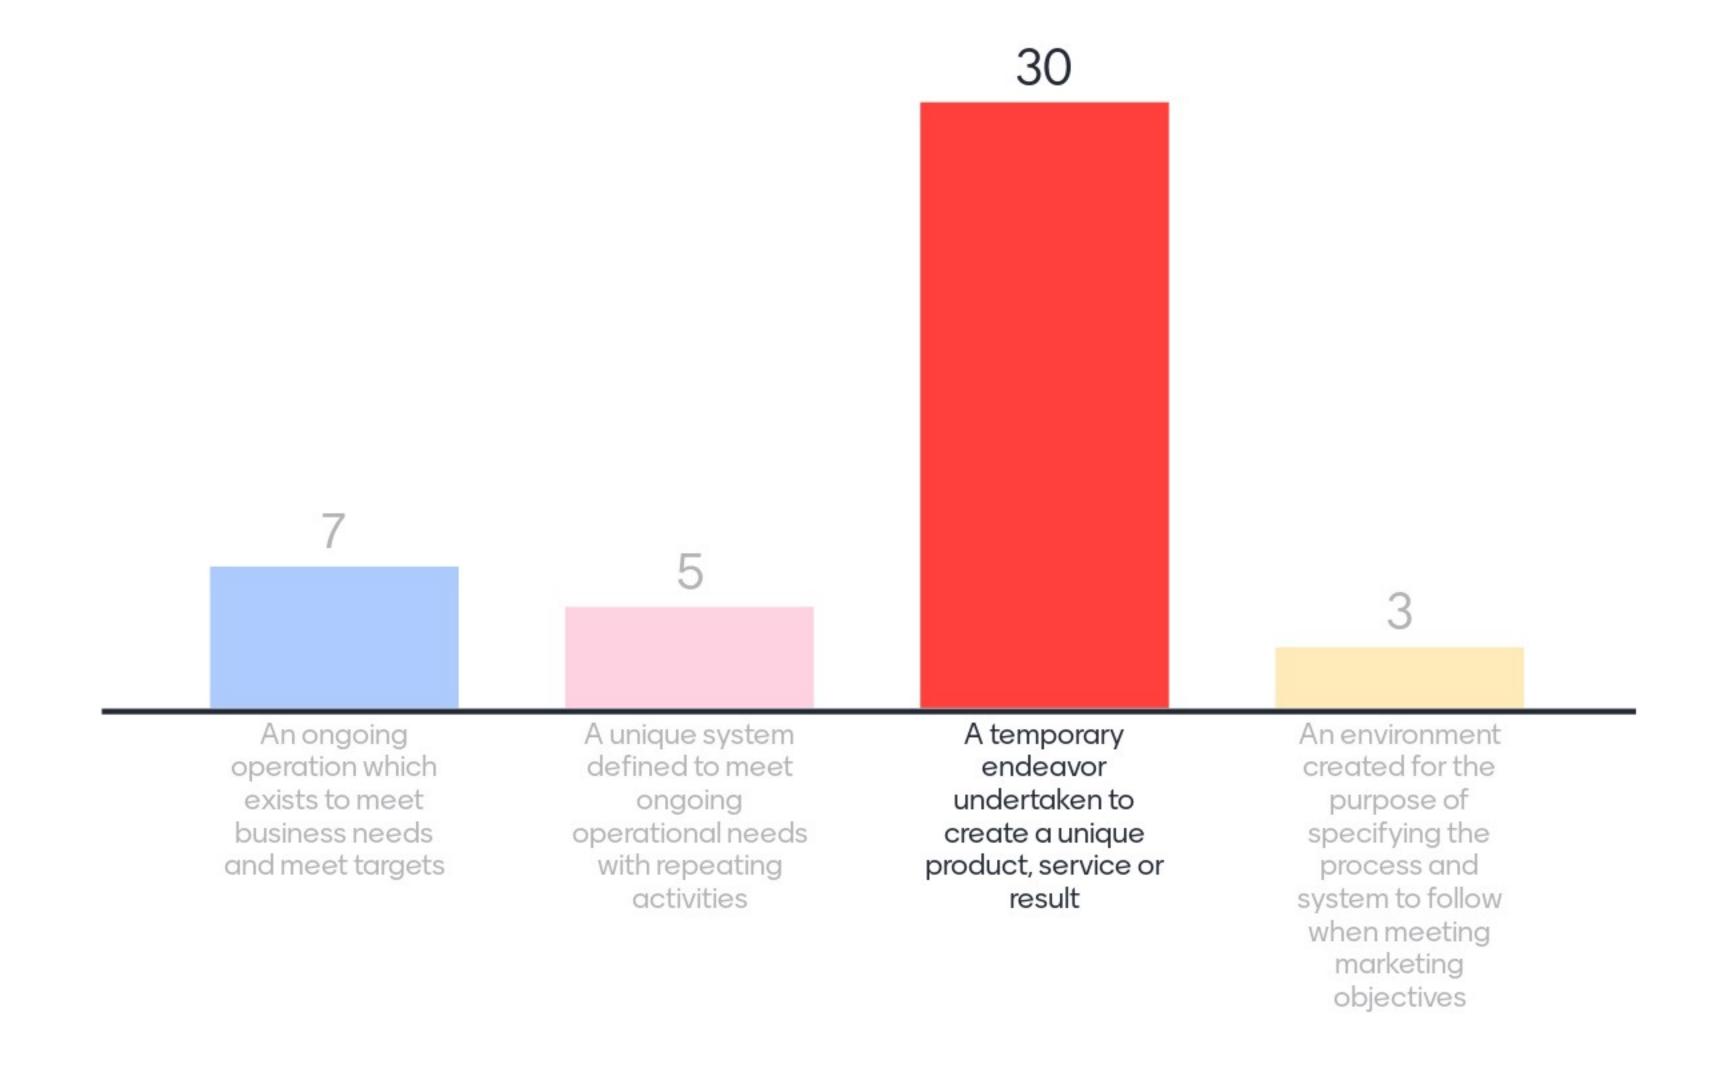

Mentimeter

One of the most important things that a PMP PM must do is?

According to the PMI, a project is?

Goal is achieved in Long term and Objective is considered for short term

Goal is a long term achievement and objectives are short term accomplishments

Goal is inmediate, objective take time

Long term and immediate.

objective is a team based goal. Goal is a personal objective.

The goal is derived from an objective

Goal is achieved by achieving a lot of little objectives

Goal is the final target and the objective is short term goal.

The goal is more long termThe objective is short term

A Goal takes a longer period of time to achieve, while an objective takes a shorter period of time

Goals are the outcomes you intend to achieve, whereas objectives are the specific actions and measurable steps that you need to take to achieve a goal. Objectives are narrower than goals and are described in terms of specific tasks goal is the user requirements (final product) that should be metwhile Objective is the steps that takes us to meet the user requirements Goals are vague, objectives are specific.

Goal is a long term commitment which needs proper planning and concentration, whereas objective is a short term target.

Goal: Overall desired outcome once all objectives are metObjective: Tasks to be taken in order to achieve a goal.

a goal is a certain point you aspire to reach and can be both personal and professional. an objective is a point you HAVE to reach in order to complete your task.

Goal is something like an long term or may be a final end productObjective is something like an short term goal completing an each sprint is an objective

Goals are wide and overarching while objectives are specific and individual

A goal is an ultimate step we want to get to. Whereas, an objective is the small steps we take to get to the goal.

Objective can be short term but goal can be on long term goal is the end point and objective is aim

Goal is a Desired Target where as objective is given or chosen Task Goals are the outcomes you intend to achieve and Objectives are narrower than goals and are described in terms of specific tasks A goal is a foreseeable achievement which may not be realistic An objective is a short-term or long-term reference to reach in a given time frame.

goal is to achieve something and objective is requirements objective has set bounderies goal has many objectives objective-specific actionsgoals-long term goal is something to achieve at end while objective is to plan for a goal.

goal might not achieve but objective is achievable

Goal is short time and objective is final destination

Goal is what you want to achieve and objectives are specific goal is something that we decide, to achieve and objective are actions required to achieve a goal the goal is the result we wish to attain, objective are the set of tasks required to achieve goals goal is a final result to intend to achieve, and objective are the specific steps you need to achieve the goal A goal is a plan to achieve a target and it is usually a long term plan while an objective is a short term pathway through which one can take to achieve a goal or goals. The goal is about what we intend to achieve, Objectives are considered as strategies and implementation

Objectives are specified to reach goals

Goal is intangible while objective is tangible

Goals are specific outcomes which are indented to achieve. Goals can be short term or long terms whereas Objective are the specific steps that are intend to achieve the goal Goals are broad and longer-lens, project objectives are specific and consist of smaller tasks.

the goal is in relation to the tasks, objective it is for the project goal is the result that you want it at the end of the project . the obejectives is the way you have to act to achieve the results the goal is something that you aim for and try to pursue it in the far or near future while the objective is not influenced by feelings

Goals are settle step by step and objective is to find some specific thing for happy life

A goal is a general statement of intent, while an objective is the quantifiable achievement of intent.

